Hayden Software presents VideoWorks, the first full-featured animation package for the Macintosh. Cartoons, business presentations, movie shorts — use your imagination, then bring it to life with VideoWorks.

Inside, you'll find everything you need to put your ideas in motion. You can draw your own images with CheapPaint, VideoWorks' own special "sketch pad", or use Art Grabber™ to quickly and easily transfer existing MacPaint™ documents for use in your productions. Familiar editing functions like cut, copy, paste, clear, and undo let you fine-tune your creations.

VideoWorks gives you two completely different ways to animate. You can move the mouse, and your images will trace the exact speed and direction of the movement. Or, using the frame-by-frame or "flip-book" method associated with traditional animation, images can be moved in increments on the screen. When played back, the images look as if they are moving continuously.

VideoWorks is a 24-channel movie-maker. You can direct up to 24 different, independent objects on-screen at the same time, for life-like, action-packed productions. And you can enhance your animations with special visual effects, sound, and several other unique options.

The Program disk contains all the tools you'll need to create your own animations. And the separate Art disk features a collection of images and subjects to customize as you see fit, then incorporate into your productions. See what VideoWorks can do right out of the box with your own private screening of the Movies disk.

Programming knowledge isn't a prerequisite with VideoWorks. Nor is any prior knowledge of animation, motion pictures, or film production. The package is designed so that anyone can create high-quality, professional-looking animations.

So escape from the world of static Macintosh images, and make your mark with motion. VideoWorks motion.
