Concentroids From Planet X v1.0 by Hiep Dam of 3G Software

This game is based on the concentration/ memory type of games. The idea is to match Concentroids hidden below various tiles. This game features: scoring, high scores, nice background patterns, animation, sounds, a background soundtrack, wild card matching, and a time limit. This is a self-extracting archive. The documentation is on SMC Disk #3. This also requires System 7.x.

Ah! Schedule v2.1s
by Guy Monroe

This program creates high-quality charts for project management and tracking. It is very easy to learn, use and remember. It has data-driven architecture for rapid chart creation and updating and includes exporting for easy transfers of Ah! Schedule to your other applications.
PLEASE NOTE: System 7 users must disable 32 bit addressing in the Control Panel.

ChainFormat v0.82
by Kazunao Fukui

ChainFormat is a multiple floppy disk formatter with several features to enhance your everyday formatting needs.

The Mobius Strip Generator
by Ed Trice

This program draws an elusive surface known as a Mobius Strip (a shape with only one side.) You can vary parameters to produce all kinds of interesting designs.

Disk Four

Star Trek Clock v1.0
by Roger Caplin

Here is a clock application with a Star Trek: The Next Generation style interface. This requires a 256-color Mac and System 7.x.

Math Flashcards v1.3
by Seth Elgart

This stack will let your child practice basic math skills. Problems are automatically generated and answers are marked (and corrected, if necessary).

Stellar Neighbors v1.0
by Joseph A. Huwaldt

Stellar Neighbors is an educational program designed to allow the user to have the unique opportunity to see the closest star systems as they would appear from the outside looking in. With the Sun at the center and the 100 nearest stars arranged as they really exist in space, you can rotate the view in three dimensions and look at them as if you were located 40 light years away, looking back at the Sun. This requires a Floating Point Unit.
